MR. AND MRS. MORTON ENTERTAIN THEIR DISTINGUISHED VISITS.

Gens. Vilas Gives the Cabinet Talk Before the Southern Visit and Mr. Endicott Is the Late Gathering—Congressmen Scramble for the Gist of Postmaster's Mail Instead of the Usual Dinner—Gossip of Men and Affairs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—[Special.]—With the exception of about two hours the time of Mr. Morton, the Vice-Presidential mansion has been entirely occupied today in receiving people who called upon the new head of the Harrisons. They began coming very early in the forenoon, and before noon he had received some hundreds of persons, many of whom were strangers to him, and who had come from a distance to shake the hand of the Secretary of the Navy. The visit was doubtless due to the fact that a notice had been published in the morning and evening papers that Mr. Morton would be at home to callers on this day. One of the callers who proposed a visit for the purpose was Judge Black, with whom Mr. and Mrs. Morton became intimately acquainted when he was Chief Justice of the United States. Judge Black, however, did not call, and it is probable that he was prevented by the fact that a dense cloud of fog settled over the city, which Mr. Morton took a great fancy to, Friday.

Aside from Judge Black, Mr. Morton and Mr. Morton were not at home, and if they called others quietly as they took during the day to pay Christmas calls, they had an opportunity to do so afterward. There was doubtless some important talk about these two families together, for it is understood among those who have confidential relations with the Administration that Secretary Morton is to say anything about politics or a Cabinet office unless interrogated or invitation is necessary for him to consult. That does not by any means.

CABINET CONFIDENCES.

At the confidential lunch at the Vice-President's there was nothing said by any one that was more interesting to the host than to anybody else, and before entering upon the business of the day it was quite natural that the two should be interested in the health of Mrs. Harrison, who is now in Florida. Mr. Morton was the first to speak of her, and he was followed by Secretary Vilas, who said that Mrs. Harrison was looking very well indeed when he left her, and that she was in excellent spirits. Mr. Vilas also said that Mrs. Harrison had been in communication with him by telegraph, and that she is to be home on Monday next. Mr. Vilas is to meet Mrs. Harrison at Jacksonville, and will accompany her to Washington. It was also said that Mrs. Harrison has been in poor health, and that it is hoped her visit to Florida will result in restoring her to her usual health. Mr. Vilas is to remain with Mrs. Harrison until Monday next, when he will return to Washington, and it was also said that Mrs. Harrison will remain in Florida for a week or ten days longer. When Secretary Vilas left the table he said that he was going to the Supreme Court room to see Judge Black, and that he would be back in a few minutes, but Mr. Morton said that he would not be back in time for the Vice-President's reception, and that he would not wait for him. The last mentioned incident was the opportunity to build, I believe Grant had not been dead. When Secretary Vilas came back to the table he said that he had been to see Judge Black, and that he would be back in time for the Vice-President's reception, and that he would wait for him. When Secretary Vilas returned to the table he said that he had been to see Judge Black, and that he would be back in time for the Vice-President's reception, and that he would wait for him. When Secretary Vilas returned to the table he said that he had been to see Judge Black, and that he would be back in time for the Vice-President's reception, and that he would wait for him.

The Cabinet dinners appear to be very pleasant affairs, and the guests, as a rule, are not disposed to talk for publication about anything that occurs at the table. Secretary Vilas, however, is an exception to the rule, and he is

POLICE, CRIMINALS AT BAY.

[illegible]

The money market has grown quiet in sympathy with an increasing amount of interest. Local securities have not sold generally down. New York exchange was easy and sterling firmer. Stocks in Wall street opened firm, but turned weak, fell to the afternoon. The Chicago produce market was quite quiet, but mostly stronger. Corn on account of [illegible] to open lower to [illegible] closing the company was [illegible] Wednesday week and the stock [illegible] Lyons, were 2 cents lower, about [illegible] lower, rate [illegible] cent lower, [illegible] Saturday's, 100 per thousand.—Local Agent.

The official returns have been received from West Virginia at last, and they demonstrate what has all along been claimed—that Virginia, notwithstanding all the Democratic shouting, accepted evil, by decided majority in favor of the Republican nominee. From the official returns of Congress are elected four Democrats and two Republicans. This is a gain of [illegible] to which is added the [illegible] Democratic majority in the Legislature, which will [illegible] Democrats.

Tennessee seems [illegible] to the schools. The Memphis Appeal says: "Before long the [illegible] will have been in [illegible] and [illegible] Before that time the [illegible] Tennessee, Representative Texas, and other Southern States have to establish an educational qualification in voting, the object being of course to disfranchise the majority of the blacks in the Southern States in order that the South may remain 'solid' for the Democrats and that the Southern men elect their President and govern Congress, secure the Supreme Court, and again run into and dominate the policies of the United States. Very foolish, truly.

The result of our investigation shows conclusively disparity of rank as to the policy or interests of the citizens. In Virginia such a fact is favored by the Revenue. In Arkansas it is opposed by every law English of the State making the two-thirds upon second reasons. He says: "We cannot with pleasure on the correspondent right of suffrage [illegible] amendment. Let the people be allowed to vote on amendment to the question of 'the right to vote because not educated.' In Mississippi there has been no [illegible] of the question as yet. The Democratic method of suppressing the Republican vote is a set rule [illegible] Democrats to refrain from [illegible] Democrats [illegible] 10,000 or 15,000 men against the fact. In Louisiana the proposition has been made as a scheme of Boston 'self-defense,' but the Times-Democrat of New Orleans, the leading Democratic paper, regards this as the plain statement that if the colored men are disfranchised by literacy the State will then have to provide for their education. In Georgia, which is the champion Democratic State of the Union, there is not much disposition to discuss the question, for, while an educational qualification would disfranchise about as many whites as blacks, the Democratic party is [illegible] to suppress. South Carolina Democrats do not generally favor the plan, and the State Government is trying to reduce the burden of the illiteracy. In South Carolina, where the great mass of Republicans are actually disfranchised, only 11,000 being allowed to vote out of 101,000, a bill has been introduced in the Legislature to cut off all Democrats, although it will frequently thousands of white Democrats.

AN

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER

FOR THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR.

20

PER CENT

DISCOUNT

On every Dress in our stock, from the cheapest to the finest garments.

ONE-FIFTH off on all Suits, and over one thousand of this season's collection to select from.

The Reason: We Are Overstocked.

The sale of Long Outside Garments has been unprecedented, interfering materially with the Suit business, which is always at the best when Short Wraps prevail in style.

As all our goods are marked in PLAIN FIGURES it will be an easy matter to deduct the discount, besides proving to you that this is a

Bona-Fide Reduction.

In fact, we are doing now, in the height of the season, something that is never done until the months of January and February—reducing new, first-class goods to about cost prices.

An early selection will, of course, secure the choicest styles.
